

Dyslexia United

25 March 2017

Programme Highlights

Paul McNeill is one of Dyslexia Scotland's Ambassadors. Paul left school with no qualifications but went back to university and is now a Regional Manager with the Scottish Football Association. Paul is a brilliant speaker who will leave you feeling full of hope and energy!

Adam Strachan is 16 years old and is hoping to start college to study music in the summer. He initially taught himself guitar and vocals at the age of 14. He is quite proud of once being described by an international dyslexia expert that he was the most dyslexic kid that he'd ever seen! His life orientates around music - songwriting, performing/busking, buying and modifying guitars. Adam has experienced many challenges over the years and finds that his ability to express himself through music and singing has transformed his life.

I am me Scotland stands up to bullying across Scotland. They have made a short film about dyslexia, which will be shown during the day.

Information stalls on Computers and Technology and Careers Advice!

www.dyslexiascotland.org.uk